

SNAP Benefits are Falling in March

Families may be able to afford 25-67 fewer meals per month when SNAP benefits decrease*

For neighbors experiencing food insecurity in Pierce County, EFN's Partner Programs are just one of many ways that households can receive support. SNAP (formerly food stamps) is one of the most important resources for families experiencing food insecurity. SNAP benefits allow households to buy the foods that make the most sense for their family and also serve as a multiplier in local economies. Economists at Moody's Analytics found that every $1 of SNAP benefits generates $1.67 in economic activity, helping families purchase food while creating jobs at farms and supermarkets as people buy more food.

The need for donations is increasing in Pierce County

Unfortunately, pandemic era boosts to SNAP benefits ended in February, leaving families with less money for food purchasing. According to the Food Research & Action Center, families nationwide will lose between $95 and $250 a month in benefits, which will be particularly difficult now as food prices are so high.

We anticipate that our network will see even more visits starting in March once families stop receiving additional benefits. The impact will extend throughout the year too, as the USDA's Economic Research Service predicts that grocery costs will continue growing at above historical average rates in 2023. Inflation may be cooling off a little from the heat of 2022, but it's still very high and impacting our neighbors, especially in concert with a reduction in SNAP benefits.

You can help our neighbors navigate this change to SNAP benefits in many ways. You can support EFN financially by making a one-time or monthly donation, hosting a Food and Fund Drive that increases the diversity of products on food pantry shelves, or volunteering. One of the most important ways you can help our neighbors is by sharing our list of partners (<https://www.efoodnet.org/find-food/>) with people who may need help from a food pantry. For many families, the biggest barrier to getting help may simply be knowing where to go.

May is Hunger Awareness Month

Supporting a Hunger Free Community

May is Hunger Awareness Month in Pierce County. This annual event inspires community members to take action and raise awareness about the need for food assistance in Pierce County. More than 2 million visits were made to EFN's partner food pantries in Pierce County during 2022, and a large percentage of these visits were on behalf of children and seniors. These are the neighbors most in need of our help.

Hunger in Pierce County is an issue that continues to grow more critical as inflation still increases costs of essentials such as food, gas, and medicine. Additionally, many school districts have long breaks which affect food availability for students and their families. EFN encourages community members to find ways to become involved with Hunger Awareness Month through events and volunteer activities.

2022 in Review

Daffodil Princesses at Abundance 2022

Last year was a busy year for EFN and our network of over 75 partner food pantries, meal sites, and shelters. Our network served over 2 million visits throughout the county from children, adults, and seniors experiencing food insecurity. Throughout 2022, supporters like you joined with EFN and our Partner Programs to achieve our vision of a community where people have access to food where and when they need it. Looking back on the past year, some moments stand out as worth celebrating:

- We returned to in-person events for the first time since 2019! Our team was so excited to share Hunger Walk with you at Fort Steilacoom Park in May and to celebrate together at the McGavick Conference Center for our Abundance Dinner & Auction.
- Our friends at the National Association of Letter Carriers hosted the Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive, which collected over 240,000 pounds of food from neighbors across the county.
- Volunteers are back! Many companies and groups understandably volunteered less frequently in 2020 and 2021, but more than 2,000 of you volunteered with us last year, for a total of 12,867 hours!

While there were many reasons to celebrate, it was a difficult year for many of our neighbors. Rising food costs were a hardship across the country, especially for households living on fixed-incomes, and after the invasion of Ukraine, Pierce County welcomed many refugees seeking safety from conflict. No matter why someone visits one of our Partner Programs, our network is there to help people get the nutritious foods that all of us need to survive and thrive.
